Improving your fluid intake

Bromley Adult Community Dietitians

Drinking fluid is as important as eating your meals and taking your medication. Your body needs fluid for many of its functions but it is particularly important in helping your kidneys work well. If you don't drink enough you may become constipated, prone to headaches, tiredness and urinary tract infections.

How do I improve my fluid intake?

- Try to drink 6-8 cups of fluid every day (2-3 pints) even if you don't feel thirsty.
- Have a drink with all meals and snacks.
- Try making your snack a drink e.g. milk, soup.
- Introduce more fluid rich foods to your diet.

Good Sources of fluid:
